The HISTORY of EUROPE.

From the WESTMINSTER JOURNAL, August 20.

WE have advice from several parts of Germany, that the three columns of Russian troops are actually on their march back to their own country, which they hope to reach in November. And from France and Flanders, that an equal number of French troops, among whom are those of the houshold, are drawing off from the army on the frontiers, according to the convention of the 2d inst. N. S. The convention shews us what that number really is; viz. 37000, which agrees pretty near with the highest estimation we have had of them during their march Southwards.

The king of Sweden is so well recovered, that he hath again appeared in public, and is retired to take the air at a country palace. Advices from his capital confirm what we had heard concerning the motions of the Russians in Finland, and the augmentations making in their garrisons and magazines; but assure us, on the other side, that such precautions will be taken as may secure the Swedes against any surprize. There is great probability that this Northern cloud will suddenly blow off, especially if all should become clear in the South, according to expectation.

His Danish majesty has ordered a commission to enquire into the state of his fleet. The courts of Hanover and Berlin seem to be very much taken up with diversions, under which appearances some will have great mysteries to be concealed. As to the intermarriage between these courts it is less talk'd of than it was some time ago; and there are some sharp sighted politicians, who have now spied out a princess of Brunswick Wolfenbuttle instead of the sister of his Prussian majesty, for the consort of his royal highness the duke of Cumberland.

The new military establishments in the Austrian hereditary provinces have been received, and the regiments are now to recruit themselves, instead of being recruited by the states. 'Tis said the empress leaves her interests at Aix la Chapelle entirely to the Maritime powers: Yet insinuations have been thrown out from France, that it is not improbable a separate peace may be made, either with her Imperial majesty or those powers. But who will give any credit to French insinuations?

It should seem that the sacrifices to be made in Italy are of all the most disagreeable to the court of Vienna, which discovers a reluctancy to the making of evacuations, and drawing off her troops in that country. Those that were actually upon their march for the hereditary provinces, and many of them temporary soldiers who had served out their term, have orders to stop on the frontier of the Venetian dominions, under pretence of some affront given to her Imperial majesty by the inhabitants of Vicenza and it's district. As this is quite a new affair, we must wait for the particulars both of the affront and the resentment: But of this we may be certain, that the Venetians will not easily suffer themselves to be drawn into a quarrel.

As the Spaniards have been vigorous in exacting contributions from the duchy of Savoy, the court of Turin is making reprizals upon the Western Riviera of the state of Genoa. In the mean time the Genoese, and the inhabitants of all the trading ports in the Mediterranean, are full of joy upon the entire cessation of hostilities by sea.

Some of the French still remain in the county of Nizza; but the Spaniards have crossed the Varo, and are filing of towards Aix, in their way to Languedoc.

We do not yet know what the particular pretensions are, which the court of Madrid has to discuss at Aix la Chapelle; but the ministers were coming back to that place when the last news came from thence, and the arrival of M. de St. Severin was to fix the time for opening the congress.

The Imperial troops are decamped from Ruremonde, and going into quarters of cantonment. The Dutch were suddenly to quit their unhealthy camp at Breda, and take another in the neighbourhood of a place called Loop-op Sand. As to the interior state of the Dutch republic, it is still in a very unsettled state.

LONDON.

July 12. The correspondence by letters, between these kingdoms and the kingdom of France, is now opened; and the first mail will be forwarded from the General Post-Office on Monday next, the 14th instant.

And the said mails for the kingdom of France, will continue for the future to go out from hence, upon the Monday and Thursday of every week; and that they will convey all letters to and from Spain, Italy, Sicily, Switzerland, Turky, and his majesty's island of Minorca, as usual heretofore, in times of peace.

August 4. An order is issued for a number of guard-ships to be directly mann'd out at Portsmouth.

By a French mail on Sunday last, there is an account that a Dutch man of war of 70 guns, and three other Dutch ships, were stranded near Calais.

We have an account from several of the dock-yards, that a great number of shipwrights, &c. have been discharged, who are immediately hired by French agents, who are there for that purpose.

The Swift, capt. Brooks, has carried into Cagliari a French polacco of 300 tons, her cargo valued at 170,000 dollars.

August 9. Letters from Paris intimate, that in the convention concluded between the count de St. Severin and the ministers of the Maritime powers, relating to the Russian troops, it is not only stipulated, that they shall with all convenient speed return into their own country; but they shall not, whilst they are in the pay of England and Holland, go into the service of any other power, nor be employed under any pretence whatsoever against the French king or his allies.

We are inform'd, that a noble duke has planned and proposed a provision for the sailors who may be discharged upon the conclusion of a peace, by sending them to man all the forts and garrisons throughout England, that they may be ready on an emergency.

August 6. This week James Hamilton, Esq; set out from his house in York Buildings, for his government of Pennsylvania.

August 13. Before the great shower of rain which fell on Thursday se'nnight in the evening, some curious gentlemen near St. James's observing some unusual clouds, discovered, by the help of optic glasses, that they were swarms of locusts; a great number of which were yesterday se'nnight taken up in St. James's park, and places adjacent. They resemble the great green grashopper found in the corn fields in all the parts of England about the time of harvest, except in the colour, which is in the body of a light brown, ribb'd with white, with two large wings longer than the body, and they have fewer legs than the grashopper; in their flight they make a buzzing noise, like that of the black beetle.

Last Tuesday a sailor in Nightingale-lane, who a few days since received upwards of 300*l.* prize money, hang'd himself at his lodgings.

August 18. A few days ago a gentleman of distinction, possessed of 3000*l.* a year, was married to a beautiful young girl, who dealt in butter and eggs; various means were tried to seduce her, but her virtue proving inflexible, he was so much enamour'd as to make her his wife; and has now masters at home to teach her all the accomplishments of a fine lady, and designs soon to make a tour with her to France.

Last Saturday a gentleman with his lady in their chariot, were attacked in Hedge-lane by four footpads, two of whom had pistols; upon which the gentleman immediately jump'd out of his chariot, and knock'd down the two villains that were arm'd, and the other two made off; but as it was dangerous to continue too long, the gentleman ſecured the piſtols, got into his chariot, and drove home.

Auguſt 24. His majeſty's ſhips the Dreadnought and Sutherland are arrived in the Downs, with the trade from Barbadoes and the Leeward Iſlands, conſiſting of 136 ſail Engliſh and Dutch.

Auguſt 29. Admiral Byng has orders to leave but ſeven men of war in the Mediterranean.

A great number of engineers, &c. are employed at the laboratory in Woolwich, under the direction of Samuel Frederick, Eſq; principal engineer, in preparing fire works to be exhibited in Lincoln's Inn Fields, on the proclamation of peace. A galley is ordered to be built of 60 foot high; and is now actually framing for that purpoſe, for the better diſplaying the fire works.

Great P—lh—m, your Praiſe would have ſounded much louder,
If you'd not been a little too late with your Powder;
But againſt the next War you've prepar'd an Excuſe,
The Rockets have drain'd me, I've got none to uſe.

The board of ordnance have ordered the forts of Sandown, Dover, Languard, Cheſſeldon, and Hull, to be immediately repaired; and have taken in an additional number of maſons, and carpenters, for that purpoſe.

By ſeveral men of war being lately put out of commiſſion, the number of watermen on the river Thames is increaſed, in a few weeks, above 2000.

Laſt week count Taaffe arrived in town from the court of Vienna, to tranſact ſome affairs of importance.

September 1. The Fubbs yatcht, capt. Limeburner, is ordered to be in readineſs againſt Saturday morning, to carry back his royal highneſs the duke to Flanders.

September 2. Several merchants in Holland have received advice of bankruptcies in almoſt all the great towns of France; and it is believed, that if the definitive treaty be not ſpeedily ſigned, there will be many more accidents of this ſort. Thoſe who have lately failed, have been very kindly treated by their creditors, upon their making it plainly appear, that their misfortunes have been occaſioned by the war, and not through any fraud or fault of theirs.

Letters from Aix la Chapelle, by the way of Liege, inform us, that the counts Kaunitz and St. Severin, are often in conference together; and that it is now thought one of the chief impending difficulties, relates to the abſolute renunciation of Silеſia by the empreſs queen.

Letters from Paris take notice, that the journey to Compeigne, which before it was made, was to decide all points relating to the peace, but produced nothing at all: That a rumour now prevails, as if the Netherlands will not be evacuated 'til the pretenſions of the courts of Munich and Dreſden upon the Auſtrian ſucceſſion are adjuſted: That in the mean time, however the French commerce reaps all the benefit of an eſtabliſhed peace; great quantities of wines, brandies, oils, and manufactures of the kingdom, having been ſhipped for Holland and the North countries.

The Hanoverian troops, which compoſed part of the army in Brabant, have actually begun their march, on their return home.

Yeſterday the lords of the regency met at the Cockpit; and 'tis ſaid took into conſideration, what number of foreign troops were proper to be diſcharged.

The report of the duke of Cumberland being yeſterday ſworn in lord high admiral of Great Britain, before the lords of the admiralty, is entirely without foundation; his royal highneſs will not accept of that office 'til the return of his majeſty from Hanover.

We learn by private letters from Leghorn, that after the attack and reduction of the town of Nonza, the commander in chief of the French forces at Baſtia ſent an officer on board the Engliſh man of war which had ſeconded that attack, and without whoſe aſſiſtance the place had never been taken, with a meſſage in writing, importing, that he wou'd be glad to know how ſo briſk a cannonading of the forces of the king his maſter conſiſted with the ceſſation of arms concluded between the two crowns. The officer having deliver'd this, return'd without an anſwer: The Engliſh commander ſoon after ſent an officer on ſhore, with a drum, to carry his reaſon for his behaviour; but in their way to the town, the drum was killed by a cannon-ſhot, and the officer being in great danger, thought proper to return without executing his commiſſion.

From Paris we learn, that the king has had ſeveral conference in the caſtle of Mutte, with the young pretender, on the ſubject of the neceſſity there was that he ſhould entirely quit the French dominions. We are further informed, that the young pretender declared he would go to any country his majeſty pleaſed, except Italy; and that in conſequence of his ſpeedy departure, he promiſed him a penſion of 500,000 livres per annum.

We hear that France is to allow the pretender's eldeſt ſon 500,000 livres per annum, and Spain 500,000 piſtoles.

Edinburgh, Auguſt 15. On Saturday 15 waggons loaded with arms, deliver'd up by the Highlanders purſuant to the late act of Parliament, were brought here from the North, and depoſited in the caſtle.

PHILADELPHIA.

October 27. From St. John's, Antigua, we have advice, that the crew of the Princeſs of Orange privateer, capt. Davidſon, of London, carried in there on a ſuſpicion of pyracy, are ordered to be ſent home to ſtand tryal: And that capt. Tyrrel, in his majeſty's ſhip Centaur, was arrived there from a cruize, and had brought with him a Spaniſh prize ſhip, laden with indigo, hides, tobacco, &c. and about 2000 dollars, that were concealed in a beef barrel.

We hear, that the damage done at Bermuda, by the hurricane on the 13th ult. amounts to upwards of twenty thouſand pounds.

November 3. There are advices in town, of an engagement off the Havanna, on the firſt of laſt month, between admiral Knowles his ſquadron, and an equal number of Spaniſh men of war, of which at preſent we have only the following particulars; viz. That intelligence being brought to the Havanna, that admiral Knowles was cruizing off the Dry Tortola's, with four ſail only, to intercept ſome very rich ſhips expected from La Vera Cruz; the governor apprehending thoſe ſhip might poſſibly fall into his hands, if meaſures were not ſpeedily taken to prevent it, ordered all the men of war in the harbour to fit out immediately, putting on board a thouſand ſoldiers, and a great number of the inhabitants, each houſe being obliged to find a hand; ſo that the ſhips were double mann'd: And the orders were, if they met with admiral Knowles, to board immediately, and by the ſuperiority of numbers to carry the Engliſh ſhips, and bring them in. The Spaniſh ſhips were as follow; the Africa, admiral Reggio, of 70 guns; the Invincible, admiral Spinola, of 70 guns; the Conqueſtadore, of 60 guns; the New Spain, of 60 guns; the Royal Family, Sir Mark Foreſter, of 60 guns; the Dragon, of 60 guns; a privateer, Don Pedro, of 36 guns.

On the day above mentioned, they fell in with admiral Knowles, who had the following ſhips; viz. The Cornwall, admiral Knowles, of 80 guns; the Lenox, of 70 guns; the Canterbury, of 60 guns; the Strafford, capt. Broady, of 60 guns; the Tilbury, of 60 guns; the Warwick, of 60 guns; the Milford, of 50 guns.

The engagement began about eleven o'clock, and continued 'til night; in which time the Africa was drove aſhore, and burnt, and the Conqueſtadore taken. During the night the Spaniards had got row-galleys from the Havanna, who aſſiſted in towing off the remainder of the ſquadron; which got into that harbour extremely ſhatter'd. 'Tis ſaid, the Spaniards had 1500 men killed and wounded in the engagement; the loſs on the ſide of the Engliſh is not mentioned, only that it was very ſmall, and that no officer was killed but a boatſwain. Admiral Knowles came before the port ſoon after, with his ſhips in good order, and ſent in a meſſage to the governor for exchanging any Engliſh priſoners that might be there, which was done accordingly; and while he lay there, meditating an attempt on the Moor-caſtle, a ſhip from Cales brought him the unwelcome news of a ceſſation of arms between Spain and England. On which he ſet ſail for Jamaica, from whence we may ſoon expect a more authentic account of this tranſaction.
